

Mental Health Challenges

Everyone faces events in their day to day life which, if not addressed, could challenge their mental health. Common challenges include:

- Losses (loved ones, health, job)
- Employment (loss, new, retirement)
- Life events (wedding, pregnancy)
- Housing
- Relationships
- Finances / Legal
- Health / Illness

Even positive life events can be stressful and require attention and care. Identify stressors, put good stress management techniques in place and take time to focus on personal needs to maintain balance with life events.

Seek professional help if you are having any of the following feelings or behaviours:

- Inability to sleep
- Feeling down, hopeless or helpless
- Difficulty concentrating
- Using drugs, alcohol to cope

Achieving POSITIVE MENTAL HEALTH

Mental health is our ability to feel, think, and act in ways that allow us to enjoy life and deal with daily challenges.

Good overall health requires both physical & mental health

Positive Mental Health

Mental health relates to how you think, feel and act. Good mental health enables people to:

- Have a positive attitude and manage life's challenges
- Feel good about and care for themselves and others
- Act responsibly in their work and in their relationships

People with positive mental health are.....

Resilient - while everyone can face bad times, having positive mental health or resilience is the ability to 'bounce back', to cope with a negative or challenging situation and not let it knock you down and keep you down.

Optimistic - challenging situations can become overwhelming if seen only as burdens rather than as problems needing a solution. Those with positive mental health approach new situations with an 'I can' attitude.

Contented - what we have and what we want are often different and those with good mental health can appreciate what they have and see what they want as goals to achieve rather than as losses to mourn.

Flexible - life is not always predictable and those with good mental health are able to adapt to changing situations and are willing and comfortable to learn new skills to deal with change.

Self confident - those with good mental health believe in themselves and in their ability to tackle the daily challenges of life.

Positive Mental Health

People with positive mental health have.....

Purpose - for those with positive mental health there is meaning and a reason to get up every day. Their life provides purpose and fulfillment in activities and relationships.

Zest for living - finding a balance between work and play, rest and activity. Enjoying life with the ability to laugh and have fun.

Positive mental health plays a key role in both preventing the onset of some physical health problems and in coping with existing physical health problems. Caring for yourself is an important building block for overall positive mental health.

Take care of your body - good diet, exercise and sleep habits provide a solid foundation to achieve overall physical and mental health.

Limit alcohol, and avoid cigarettes and drugs - these substances provide the illusion of being calming but have long term negative effects on physical and mental health.

Achieving Mental Health

In addition to taking care of physical wellbeing, taking care of yourself includes being involved with activities that make you 'feel good'....

Exercise your brain - learn and discover, take a class, visit the library, join a club, play a challenging game, work on a puzzle.

Volunteer - being useful to others and being valued for what you do helps build self esteem.

Enjoy nature - a walk in the park can lower blood pressure and reduce stress.

Appeal to your senses - find pleasure in the things that look, sound, feel, smell and taste right to you - your five senses can provide calming and soothing pleasure.

Leisure - hobbies and activities provide fun, a necessity, as play provides a balance in life which contributes to mental health.

Manage stress - stress takes a heavy toll on mental health - know your stressors and how to manage them.

Build friendships - the company of others helps us to feel and be our best everyday.

Support network - talking about feelings and issues reduces stress and provides support.
